Robinson Hook Technology

The Robinson hooks is our technological 'name card' enthusiastically received on the international angling market. Due to the knowledge gathered by the Robinson float Team and the technical background we were able to create a unique hooks offer produced with the highest world standards. The Hi-Tech is an example for other angling producers. Two elements are important in hook production: technology and experience. ROBINSON hooks are a product in which both elements are in a perfect proportion.

The Robinson Hook Technology is based on the use of the highest quality bend-resistant carbon steel with a homogeneous internal structure. Our hooks do not break! Supersteel has an enormous flexibility – no plastic abrasions even with maximal loads.

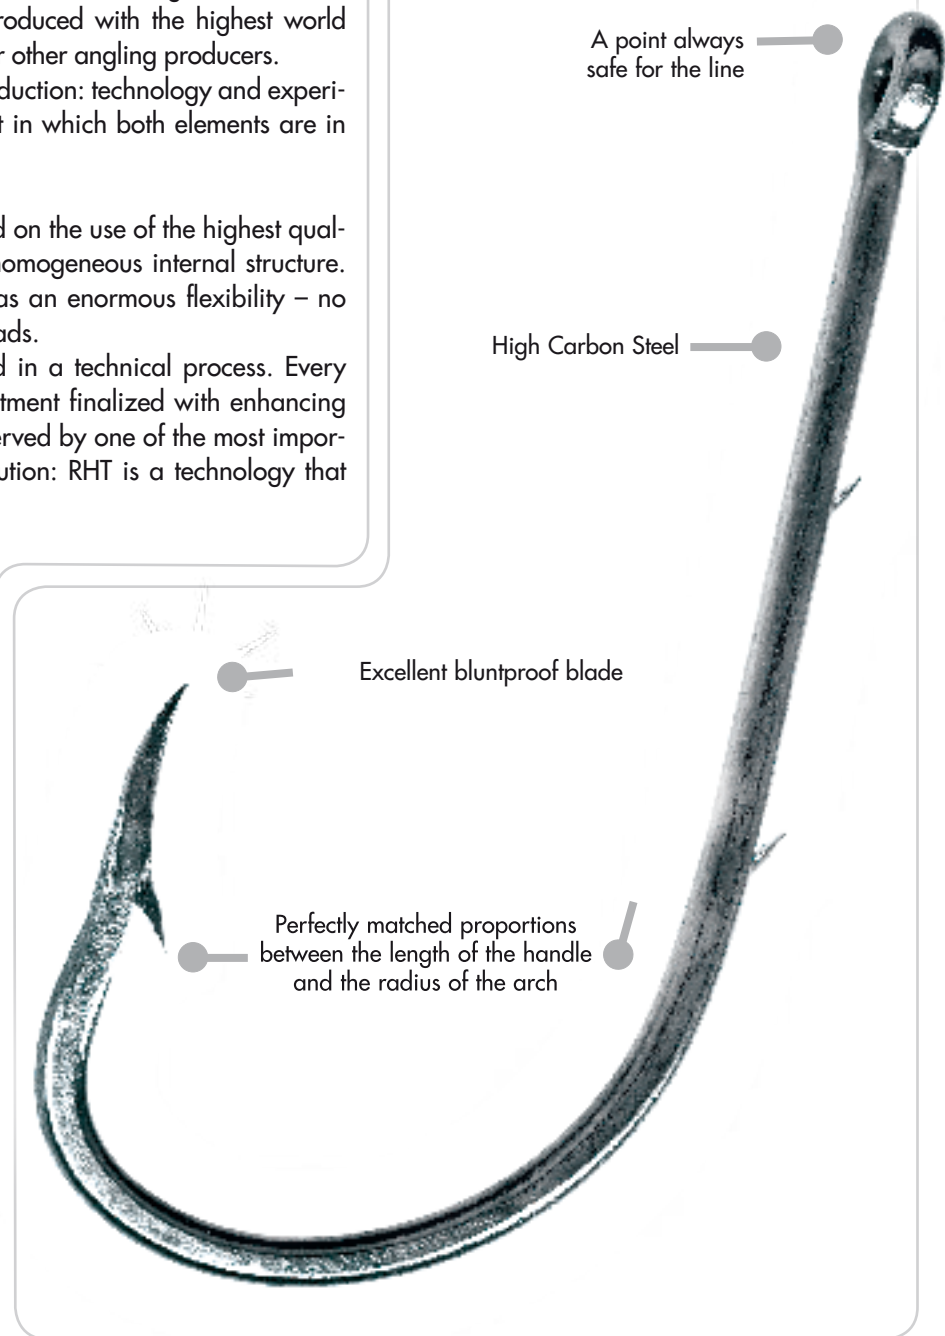

The durability parameters are adjusted in a technical process. Every hook undergoes a special thermal treatment finalized with enhancing phase – this fragment of the RHT is reserved by one of the most important marks in the latest metallurgy. Caution: RHT is a technology that prevents overenhancing the hooks!

The sharpening process is also unique due to the use of electrochemical and mechanical methods with a careful computer aid. Because all ROBINSON hooks are made with new machines steered by a central computer system there is always a 100 per cent shape match.

ROBINSON hooks rapidly became a hit on the market because they are an ideal combination of the latest technology and experience of the fishermen. Every model was designed strictly according to the tips and suggestions of the experts angling on a professional level. They were also tested to prove their worth in water.

The most important hook features are:

- FANTASTIC SHARPNESS
- BIG BENDING RESISTANCE
- BLUNTING DURABILITY
- 100 PER CENT CORROSION PROTECTION
